

Another College year starts

The first day of College classes began Monday, Aug. 24, signaling the end of summer vacation for students and faculty.

Although registration began Thursday, Aug. 20, late registration was taking place during the week of the 24th. Registration was held in the Ely Center and last Monday morning the line could be seen extending out to the Mall. Not all students in line were there to register—many were adding, dropping or changing some courses.

Registration itself proceeded in an orderly fashion with just the usual problems that crop up during the new school year. Students with unpaid debts could not register for classes until the debts were paid or satisfactory arrangements were made to pay them off.

Many upper class students and some faculty members as well who were not here during the summer were taking their first look at the renovated Ely Center and landscaped mall. Comments ranged from "I can't believe this is the old SUB" to "Wait a minute, let me get my bearings" and "Much, much better."

The Abbey (rathskeller) has been bursting with business, especially on the weekends, as students gathered to see their old friends and meet new students to relate their summer adventures.

By this Monday, Aug. 31, all students will have registered, all class changes will be completed and everyone should be hitting the books in full stride.

Campus police nab burglar in act

The campus police have announced the arrest of an individual believed to be involved in several burglaries on Kendall Green. Andrew Bernard Barksdale, a 21-year-old former MSSD student, was arrested by campus police officers inside the Gallaudet Press (the old Transportation Department building) during the early morning hours of Aug. 13, 1981.

Barksdale is also under investigation for his possible involvement with the burglaries that occurred in the Gallaudet Press, Hall Memorial Building and Hearing and Speech Center in June.

During the early morning hours of June 26, 1981 a team of burglars sneaked onto campus and broke into several offices in various buildings on campus. They took no expensive office equipment or personal belongings, only cash. They were most successful in the Gallaudet Press facility where they managed to abscond with $160 in cash. Three sets of footprints were found in the area.

While the total take in the burglary spree amounted to only a few hundred dollars, the campus police launched a major effort. "If they hit us once and felt that they got away with it, we knew they would be back for more," said campus police Chief Floyd E. Holt. "We were fairly lucky the first time—a few hundred dollars. If they came back again, we might not be so lucky. We had to catch them. It was that simple."

Lt. Tom Earing, supervisor of Investigations, was placed in charge of the investigation. Earing analyzed the thieves' method of operation and then placed sophisticated electronic detection devices at key locations. Once acti-

Archivist Corrine Hilton holds the Diet (Congressional) medallion which was presented to President Merrill during his recent trip to Japan by Yoshio Sakurachi, Secretary of the Liberal-Democratic Party. This party is in power in Japan, and Sakurachi is considered to be the second most powerful political figure in Japan. Merrill presented Sakurachi with a Cadwallader Washburn dry point. The Diet medallion has been placed in the College Archives.

Convocation scheduled here to commemorate the IYDP

A-1 faculty, staff and students are invited to attend a Convocation in the Gallaudet College Auditorium on Sept. 15 at 3 p.m. in recognition of the International Year of Disabled Persons (IYDP).

David T. Kearns, president of Xerox Corporation and chairman of the U.S. Council of IYDP will deliver the keynote address.

An academic procession of administrators and faculty representatives will march in their academic robes from Hughes Gym to the Auditorium, where the special guests of the Convocation will join the procession.

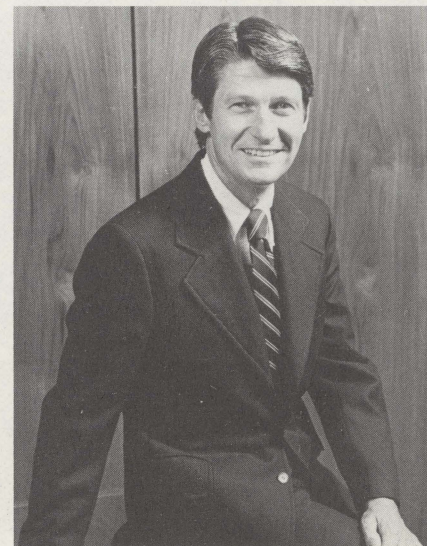

People who have made major contributions to IYDP and to the welfare of handicapped persons will be honored at the gathering. The Board of Trustees has recommended three outstanding individuals for honorary degrees. S. Dillon Ripley, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, has made facilities of the Institution accessible to handicapped people and will be recognized for his service to them. Judith Heumann, who is the deputy director of the Center for Independent Living in Berkeley, CA, will be cited for developing independent living programs for disabled persons. The Honorable Charles Percy, U.S. senator (R-IL) and chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, is hearing impaired himself and will be honored for being a model and inspiration to other handicapped persons.

In addition, the Powrie Vaux Doctor Medallion will be awarded to Knud Sondergaard and Kaoru Murakami. Sondergaard, a graduate of the school for the deaf in Nyborg, Denmark, is employed by the Danish government in agricultural economics. He is president of the Danish Association of the Deaf, a member of the Nordic Council of the Deaf, chairman of the Danish government agency for rehabilitation counselors and general secretary-treasurer of the International Committee of Sports for the Deaf. Murakami is president of Lions International.

Powrie V. Doctor was a faculty member at Gallaudet for 46 years and became an internationally recognized authority on deafness. The Board of Trustees established the Powrie V. Doctor Chair of Deaf Studies in his honor and authorized the granting of the Powrie V. Doctor Medallion in recognition of persons who have given generously of their time and wisdom to other nations.

A reception will immediately follow the Convocation in the atrium of the Ely Center.

David Kearns is chairman of the U.S. Council of IYDP.

Field house progress report

by Robert Harmon

Gallaudet's new field house (large gymnasium), barring any unforeseen catastrophes, should be completed by this December so that we can move in for the spring semester.

The field house is the building now under construction between the Auditorium and the track. When completed, it—together with Hughes Gym (the present gymnasium)—should at long last provide the College with enough space for its indoor athletic activities: physical education courses, inter-collegiate athletics, intramural sports and free-time recreation. It is also intended for use, when available, for large non-athletic events such as graduations and conventions of groups serving the deaf.

The field house will contain a large gymnasium floor with three "stations," each with a full-size basketball court and superimposed volleyball and badminton courts, five racquetball/handball courts, a weight room, saunas, three classrooms, an adaptive room, offices and the usual support facilities. At the ends of the main floor there will be retractable seating with backs for nearly 1,800 people. Additional folding seats can be set up on the floor.

Behind the field house is a two-level parking structure which will be able to accommodate 244 cars. The upper level, which is on grade, can be used now, while the lower, underground level is expected to be ready by early October.

The field house and parking structure have been designed by Mills, Clagett and Wenigan, a local architectural firm which has designed several buildings for George Washington University including the Smith Center, their major athletic building.

Some of the construction money has also been allocated for renovations to Hughes Gymnasium. As a minimum, it is hoped that bars and mirrors will be installed in the auxiliary gym (still called the women's gym by some misguided people!) to make this space suitable for a dance studio. Other badly-needed renovations will be undertaken as funds permit.

A name other than "field house" is being sought to designate the new building, since it is not actually a field house by the usual definition of this term. Although a couple of ideas have been suggested, further suggestions are welcome.

Drawings and floor plans of the field house are displayed in the corridor near the faculty/staff lounge (room 152) in Hall Memorial Building, and floor plans are posted outside the office in Hughes Gym. If you have any questions concerning the project, contact Bob Harmon in HMB 178, or call x5392.

EMG Building undergoes renovation

Progress on the renovation of the Edward Miner Gallaudet Memorial Building has accelerated in recent weeks.

The building used to house the Gallaudet College Library before it moved into the Learning Center. Once renovated, the building will house the Office of Alumni and Public Relations, including Publications, Media and Community Relations, Visitors Center and the Information Center.

The architectural firm of Faulkner, Fryer and Vanderpool has been selected as project architects. They are also currently working on the interior renovation of the Old Gym. Faulkner, Fryer and Vanderpool were selected in late May when Graham Gund Associates decided to terminate their contract.

An important part of the renovated Edward Miner Gallaudet Memorial Building will be a large exhibit area. Tetrad, Inc., an Annapolis-based design firm with a great deal of exhibit design experience, has been hired to design the exhibit. They began this project with an intensive two-day orientation to deafness. Two key personnel met with a number of Gallaudet faculty and staff in a series of informal meetings. They also spent the night in Krug Hall and took their meals in the Dining Hall in an effort to meet students informally. Peter Tasi from Tetrad, Inc. will be spending the next several months learning more about deafness and designing our exhibit. It is expected that as much of the current Look of Sound exhibit as possible will be incorporated into the new exhibit.

Faulkner, Fryer and Vanderpool expect to complete their design work by the end of December. Construction is scheduled to begin in February, 1982 and end in December of 1982.

If you have any questions about this project, contact Carole Cangiano in Hall Memorial Building 117, telephone x5075.

The new field house will provide needed space for College athletic activities.

Academy sponsors deafness seminar

An intensive two-day "Continuing Education Seminar on Deafness for the Mental Health Professional" will be held Nov. 5 and 6 in New Orleans, LA.

The seminar is presented by Gallaudet's National Academy, in co-operation with the Catholic Deaf Center, Delgado College Interpreter Training Program, Louisiana State University School of Medicine and Louisiana State University School of Social Welfare.

Designed for the mental health professional with minimal or no previous experience with deaf patients, the seminar will develop an understanding of the basic psychological aspects of deafness and develop skills in the evaluation, diagnosis and management of deaf patients.

Continuing education credit will be awarded to physicians, psychologists, social workers and nurses.

For further information contact Terri Baker at The National Academy, x5480.

No holiday for energy

by Jim Hull

Whether students, staff or faculty are on campus working or off on a holiday, some energy is used just to keep temperatures, systems, security and general lighting operational.

It is our obligation to keep energy expenditures at absolute minimum during holiday and weekend periods.

This holiday weekend, let each of us pay particular attention to turning off unnecessary appliances, closing doors and windows, and drawing drapes and shades. We can collectively make a difference.

Rehabilitation Engineering Center for the Deaf

The Division of Research submitted a proposal on Aug. 10 to the National Institute of Handicapped Research for the establishment and five years work of a Rehabilitation Engineering Center for the Deaf and Hearing Impaired.

The Center would be operated by the Division's Sensory Communications Research Laboratory. It would include development and research projects carried out at three institutions: Gallaudet College, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Johns Hopkins University. A collaborating project would involve the Stanford University Medical School's Division of Otolaryngology.

Areas of work for the proposed project include surveys for use of in-place or off-the-shelf technology, such as TV and emerging information services; wearable aids to speech reception via the tactile sense; electro-auditory implants in the cochlea; a voice-sensing training aid for the deaf; and new diagnostic procedures based on detailed speech acoustic patterns.

James Pickett, director of the Sensory Communication Research Laboratory, is the proposed center director. Other individuals who would have a major role in the project are Sally Revoile, James Mahshie and William McFarland of Gallaudet College; Louis Braida and Nathaniel Durlach of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; and Moise Goldenstein and Charles Westgate of Johns Hopkins University. Additional Gallaudet professionals who would assist in the project are Orin Cornett and Donald Torr.

John Hartman, center, talks with friends and coworkers at his farewell reception held Aug. 21. Hartman has resigned as manager of the Purchasing and Services Department to accept another position in Texas.

A Message from the President

Welcome to the 1981-82 academic year

How good it was to meet so many new students on Kendall Green. The familiar word and sign, "Remember me?" was expressed time and again. I did remember a good many faces but I could not recall names. So I would say "Where did we meet?" One student would say "The time you came to California, Fremont." Another would say "When you were in Michigan" and still another would say "At the leadership camp in Massachusetts." And so it was. Students from California, Texas, Massachusetts and all over had made their decision to come to Gallaudet College as preps and freshmen. They bring with them an enthusiasm and expectation that should challenge all of us.

It is particularly good also to see other students returning as well as faculty and staff who have been away for the summer. Small groups of our undergraduate and graduate students are seen here and there talking enthusiastically about experiences during the summer. Although Gallaudet College had one of its busiest summers, there is nothing quite like having the Gallaudet community together again.

I hope that our theme this year for the College, the MSSD and the KDES can be "improving instruction and learning." Fortunately, many deaf young people now have a variety of schools and programs from which to choose. They want and deserve the best programs for them. This introduces a real note of competition into our academic world. We should welcome it and accept the challenge it brings with it. A student who comes to Gallaudet, to the MSSD or to KDES should have his educational needs met by one of these institutions better than they could be met in any other way. It is up to us to make it happen.

Although we did not receive federal appropriations for Fiscal Year 1982 which will permit us to plan realistically for receiving substantially larger numbers of students born during the rubella years, we were most fortunate in not having severe cuts in our financial base. Our expectations, however, must soon reflect the mood of the nation. We do not have funds which will permit the continuation of a "business as usual" attitude. We must establish priorities, use funds judiciously and be able to demonstrate results from the expenditure of funds. This is a climate which will prevail for several years and which, if accepted in the proper way, can be good for us. We already have indications that funding for FY '83 will be stringent in spite of the challenge of the rubella group.

The 1981-82 academic year will bring with it a great deal of excitement. We want to wish the MSSD "Eagles" success in football equal to last year's record. We are also looking forward to the "Bisons" taking the field. This should rev up school spirit greatly.

All of us are enjoying the renovated Ely Center after two years of inconvenience. We are also watching Kendall Green turn green again! Early in the second semester the new field house will be finished and available for an expanded physical education and athletic program. Inasmuch as construction of Dormitory VI has been deferred, the only inconvenience we will experience will be the renovation of the Edward Miner Gallaudet Memorial Building so that it can become the National Information Center on Deafness.

As the end of the academic year approaches, all of us can look forward to the triennial convention of the Gallaudet College Alumni Association which will be held in the "new" Ole Jim in the summer of 1982. It will be wonderful to see the grads back on Kendall Green and to watch them try to find their initials on some of the woodwork which will be left in the old structure.

Welcome back one and all to Kendall Green. Let's show everyone what excellent special schools—KDES, MSSD and Gallaudet—can do that no other school or college would even attempt!

Pizza is now served in The Abbey in Ely Center. The Abbey is open Mon.-Thurs. from 4 p.m.-midnight, Fri. from 4 p.m.-2 a.m. and Sat. from 6 p.m.-2 a.m.

DRCC studies deaf employment

During the 1981-82 academic year, the Deafness-Related Concerns Council will continue to study issues related to the employment of deaf people on Kendall Green.

The Task Force on Deaf Employment has been studying the situation during the past year and prepared a status report on their work last May and June.

The first phase of the task force's work was to develop an overall statistical picture of the current employment situation of both deaf faculty and staff at the College. All deaf individuals employed full time, both permanent and temporary, on campus as Nov. 6, 1980 were identified.

A study was also made on the issue of ensuring objectivity in screening deaf job candidates by deaf members on screening committees.

The task force found that at the College, the total deaf representation in the academic program faculty was 25%—27% for the undergraduate program and 18% for the graduate program. In the Division of Pre-College Programs, 28% of the faculty were deaf. Overall deaf staff employment on campus was 14%.

The task force noted that the total number of positions on campus has increased by approximately 50% during the past decade; the number of deaf employees has increased by 10%.

On screening committees, the task force found that the possibility that deaf members may tend to screen out deaf candidates was similar to members screening out individuals they knew too well at the institution, both hearing and deaf. Recommendations were developed for screening committee members to be properly instructed to be more objective in future screenings involving known candidates, that deaf candidates be offered instruction in interview skills and that attention be given to how inadequate interpreting affects the status of deaf candidates.

The task force is now studying several other issues: the value of life experience in job requirements, recruitment and the screening process, upward mobility (advancement) and retention of deaf employees.

Members of the Task Force on Deaf Employment are Malcolm Grossinger, chair, LaVarne Hines, John Kubis, Marianne Sasseen, Denise Sullivan and Ronald Sutcliffe.

Personalities

Jane Hurst is an assistant professor in the Department of Religion. She will be teaching comparative religion offerings to develop course offerings. Hurst has her BA from Smith College and MA and PhD in Religion from Temple University. She has taught previously at the University of Virginia and at Central Michigan University.

Hurst

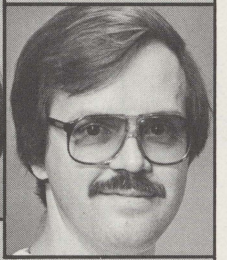

Fitzgerald

Kay Fitzgerald will be working at Gallaudet for a year on a nationwide publicity program to advertise the National Information Center on Deafness. Fitzgerald works with IBM in a program that loans persons of special expertise to handicapped and minority colleges around the country. For the past two years she has been associated with the IBM Information Systems Division in Boulder, CO, where she served as editor of an employee newspaper.

Pauley

Brasel

Caren Altech Pauley is an assistant professor with the Department of Romance Languages. She has 13 years of college teaching experience at Hunter, Lehman, Queens, Mt. Vernon, Northern Virginia Community College and George Washington University. She has her MA from Harvard University and her PhD from City University of New York.

Ron Brasel is an instructor in the Department of Sign Communication and will be coordinating the SimCom program for the graduate school. He has his BA from Sioux Falls College and MA in Counseling from Gallaudet. He has worked as a public school teacher, dean of students at the South Dakota School for the Deaf and as an instructor at Augustana College and Sioux Falls Community College. At Gallaudet, Brasel has worked as a counselor for the Experimental Prep Project and as a dorm counselor.

vated, this equipment would instantaneously and simultaneously notify all campus police on duty of a crime in progress over their police radios. Police interception patrols were also further intensified.

At 3:51 a.m. on Aug. 13, the device activated, sending a priority message over every campus police officer's radio. Within seconds, campus police patrol cars, their red lights flashing, converged on the facility. Arriving officers found the broken window the burglar had used to enter the building. Nearby they observed the hole he had cut in the fence to gain entry into the campus.

With the building surrounded, Lt. William Bullock and Officer Donald Wardlaw moved in to apprehend the suspect they knew was still somewhere inside the building. They located Barksdale hiding inside in a restroom. He surrendered to campus police officers without incident.

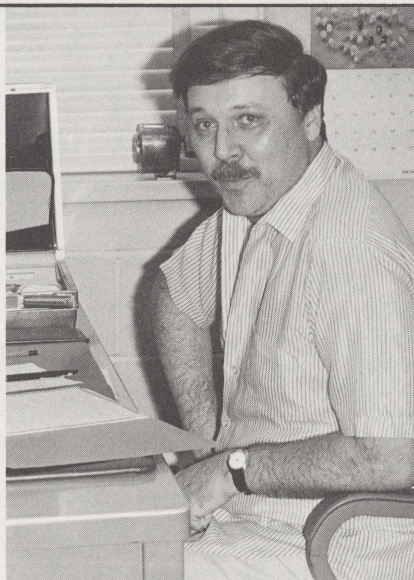

Barksdale, a resident of Southeast Washington, has a long criminal history. Arrested for burglary five times already this year, Barksdale was on probation at the time of his arrest by the campus police.

Campus police investigators are now attempting to connect him with the previous crimes and identify any associates he might have. Campus police say that the method of gaining entry into the buildings was the same in both the June 26 and the Aug. 13 burglaries.

Among Ourselves

Jim Hull of Maintenance and Operations served as a member of the instructional staff for a "Conference for Energy Managers" at the University of Wisconsin recently. His presentation centered on how retrofitting lamps in existing fixtures at Gallaudet College has worked, and the effect on labor and energy when converting from one light source to another.

An article entitled "Are You a Model Z Leader?" by Thomas J. Landers, dean of the School of Education and Human Services, was published in the August, 1981 issue of the Executive Educator.

World Around You sponsors contest

World Around You, a national news magazine for hearing impaired young people published by the outreach unit of the Division of Pre-College Programs, is sponsoring its yearly Creative Contest for hearing impaired students.

The contest has four categories: Fiction, Non-Fiction, Poetry, and Drawing and Art. Students from all over the United States and Canada are entering the contest.

This year for the first time the writing contest will have a theme, "Deafness." The approach may be physiological, social, personal or philosophical, but the author must focus on some aspect of deafness or hearing impairment.

Job posting distribution changed

Campus-wide distribution of the Positions Available bulletin has been changed as of Aug. 24.

The primary purpose of the on-campus mailing is to bring possible transfer and promotion opportunities to the attention of Gallaudet employees. In an attempt to ensure that the bulletin is posted in highly visible spots on campus, as well as to ensure cost effectiveness, a revised distribution list was developed.

In addition, the voice and TDD recording (x5514 voice or X5520 TDD) will continue to provide round-the-clock information regarding job openings.

The list of locations and the names of the individuals to whom the Positions Available bulletin will be sent follows:
